

This Directory was produced by the Mental Health and Substance Abuse Committee of Healthy Carolinians of Orange County. It is intended to increase knowledge and access to available mental health services in the Orange, Person, and Chatham County areas.

This Directory includes general information about state and county mental health services including emergency and crisis services, governmental and non-governmental agencies and a listing of private mental health providers in Orange, Person, Chatham, and Durham Counties, who chose to be included in this directory. Healthy Carolinians of Orange County does not endorse any specific provider.

 Due to Durham's close proximity to Orange, Person and Chatham Counties, therapists from Durham are included in this directory.

The Directory is a living document. The most updated and current information about providers and available services can be found by visiting either the Mental Health America of the Triangle's website at www.mhatriangle.org; or the Healthy Carolinians of Orange County's website at: www.co.orange.nc.us/healthycarolinians.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The development of this directory has been a collaborative effort between individuals and organizations working to help meet the needs of our community. It was initially developed by Healthy Carolinians of Orange County, and is currently hosted by Mental Health America of the Triangle. Thanks go to Nidhi Sachdeva, Health Educator at the Orange County Health Department, and all of the hard-working members of the Mental Health and Substance Abuse Committee of Healthy Carolinians of Orange County. Special thanks to Kate B. Reynolds Charitable Trust, whose funding has made this project possible.

We would also like to thank the mental health professionals listed in the directory who have dedicated their careers to helping improve the mental health of community members, and who have contributed financially to cover the cost of printing and distribution of this document.

We hope that users of this directory find it helpful and easy to use and we welcome your feedback.

Sincerely,

Pro Bono Counseling Network

Mental Health America of the Triangle (formerly Mental Health Association of Orange County) in collaboration with Healthy Carolinians of Orange County and with funding from OPC Area Program launched the Pro Bono Counseling Network in January 2009, which serves Orange, Chatham, and Person county residents. The goal of the project is to recruit mental health professionals to join a network of providers who agree to provide counseling pro bono (one client/year, a minimum of eight sessions), and to match up clients seeking mental health services, who are underinsured or uninsured, with an appropriate provider. Phone: (919) 942-8083, x5.

APPENDIX B: INFORMATION TO CONSIDER WHEN CHOOSING A PROVIDER

The client-provider relationship is a key ingredient of successful treatment. Here are some of the topics you may wish to consider when selecting a mental health provider.

Credentials: academic qualifications and licensure of the provider. See page 67 for a guide to common credentials in North Carolina.

Experience: the length of time the person has been in practice, types of client served (for example, children, adolescents, etc.), and areas of specialty (for example, major illness, divorce, eating disorders, etc.).

Treatment Procedures: the length and frequency of sessions, medication information, emergency arrangements, expected duration of treatment.

Note: If after a reasonable length of time, you feel that a rapport has not been established between you and your therapist, you may consider changing practitioners.

Office Procedures: office hours, notification of cancellation of appointments, “after hours” availability.

Financial Arrangements: fees, insurance coverage, special payment considerations.

Below are potential questions to ask yourself when seeking help:

Am I interested in individual, group, couples or family services? Short or long-term services? Do I want my therapist to have expertise in a particular subject or modality, or working with a particular population? Do I want my therapist to be a particular gender? Why am I seeking treatment? What are my goals for treatment? How much time do I want to invest in this process? When?

Below are potential questions to ask a provider when seeking help:

What type of training have you received? How long have you been in practice? What type of license, certification(s) or credential(s) do you hold? Do you have a specialty? How would we work together? How long will it take? What are your policies around payment, insurance and other financial arrangements? Do you accept my private insurance, Medicare or Medicaid? Are appointments available during times that fit my schedule?

APPENDIX C: A USER'S GUIDE TO THIS DIRECTORY FROM SOMEONE WHO NEEDED IT

If you are looking for someone to talk to about your problems and work on making them better, it might seem like you couldn't swing a cat without hitting a "therapist." (Swinging a cat is NOT recommended for long-term mental health for you or the cat.)

Finding the "right" therapist can be complicated. Right off you'll find that only psychiatrists can prescribe drugs, which have taken more and more of a starring role in treating mental illness. This type of treatment primarily focuses on the physical and chemical natures of the problem. The other types of professionals in mental health treatment and therapy are usually not as focused on the medicine (and often consult with a psychiatrist for that aspect). They usually concentrate more on the mind, thoughts, and feelings than the brain and chemistry. This is a simplified sketch of the overall pattern, and there are great differences between many and all of them.

One of the most important things to find out about a therapist is whether or not you can "work" with him or her. The interaction between personalities is VERY critical in therapy. Personal "philosophies" are also important. If you are an atheist and your prospective therapist wants to do faith healing that might be ground for concern. That's just one example. The important thing is that to do the work of "therapy" you have to have some sort of rapport with your therapist, as two-way communication is essential. And, remember, you don't have to impress your therapist or entertain your therapist. That's not the purpose of therapy.

Some of the details to remember: Figure out what financial resources you have: insurance, Medicaid/Medicare, part of an employment package. Knowing this before an appointment is invaluable. Some therapists have a sliding scale to make payments easier. In some cases, the public mental health system is the only or best option.

At any rate the general rule can be to reduce or remove barriers that keep you and your therapist from working together on your problems. Hopefully, this Directory will help get things underway.

Stephen E. Haebig

APPENDIX D: YOUR RIGHTS AS A PERSON RECEIVING MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES

- To participate in developing an individual plan of treatment.
- To receive an explanation of services in accordance with the treatment plan.
- To participate voluntarily in and to consent to treatment.
- To object to, or terminate, treatment.
- To have records protected by confidentiality and not be revealed to anyone without my written authorization.

Confidentiality may only be broken under the following conditions (state laws will vary):

- If the therapist has knowledge of child or elder abuse.
 - If the therapist has knowledge of the client's intent to harm oneself or others.
 - If the therapist receives a court order to the contrary.
 - If the client enters into litigation against the therapist.
- To have access to one's records.
 - To receive clinically appropriate care and treatment that is suited to their needs and skillfully, safely, and humanely administered with full respect for their dignity and personal integrity.
 - To be treated in a manner that is ethical and free from abuse, discrimination, mistreatment, and/or exploitation.
 - To be treated by staff who are sensitive to one's cultural background.
 - To be afforded privacy.
 - To be free to report grievances regarding services or staff to a supervisor.
 - To be informed of expected results of all therapies prescribed, including their possible adverse effects (e.g., medications).
 - To request a change in therapist.
 - To request that another clinician review the individual treatment plan for a second opinion.
